TRAVEL TIPS

Dear Traveler!

The title of this message may sound strange at this very moment; travelling is our passion, unfortunately it is forced to rest for some time.

Looking back to the events of the past weeks and months, it is now getting clear what phases the travel professionals and travelers experienced; first we did not quite understand what was happening around us, as we had never seen such pandemic before. Then we realized the consequences of this global crisis; air traffic, civil aviation practically got frozen.

Early May saw a number of promising news, we can now feel the first heartbeats of aerospace. Announcements of service renewal are following each other, airlines publish their plans or resuming operation day by day. This new beginning requires new approach from travellers and travel arrangers; it seems to be impossible to predict anything, we receive new pieces of information, new bits of data, new impulses each day, these help us solve the puzzle we suspended.

The first exact item of the new approach is that we have to consider more factors during planning a leisure or business trip. It is not enough to check travel document and visa requirements of our destination, we have to be up to date about health regulations among our route, and also the new safety regulations of airlines.

To support you in this, AirPartner is preparing an interactive database; we do our best to deliver it to you as soon as we can, and we hope it will help you get even more confident during managing and arranging your trips.

Apart from this, we are setting off a bulletin on our online media (facebook, Instagram), we will deliver current news, facts, analysis to you. We sincerely hope this will contribute to shaping the picture what we think of as the future of civil aviation.
